Current status of the Test Incident Report are as follow:

New (new incident introduced in current iteration)	Open (Incident discovered from previous test iteration that still pending to be resolved)	Reject (Incidents that were rejected after investigation because it cannot be categorized as incident)	Resolved (incidents that have been confirmed resolved)	Deferred (Incidents that have been deferred. Incidents are confirmed to be fixed for next release version)
Number of new incident = 0	Number of Open Incident = 4	Number of Rejected Incidents = 0	Number of Resolved Incidents = 0	Number of Deferred Incident = 2

Changes from Plans

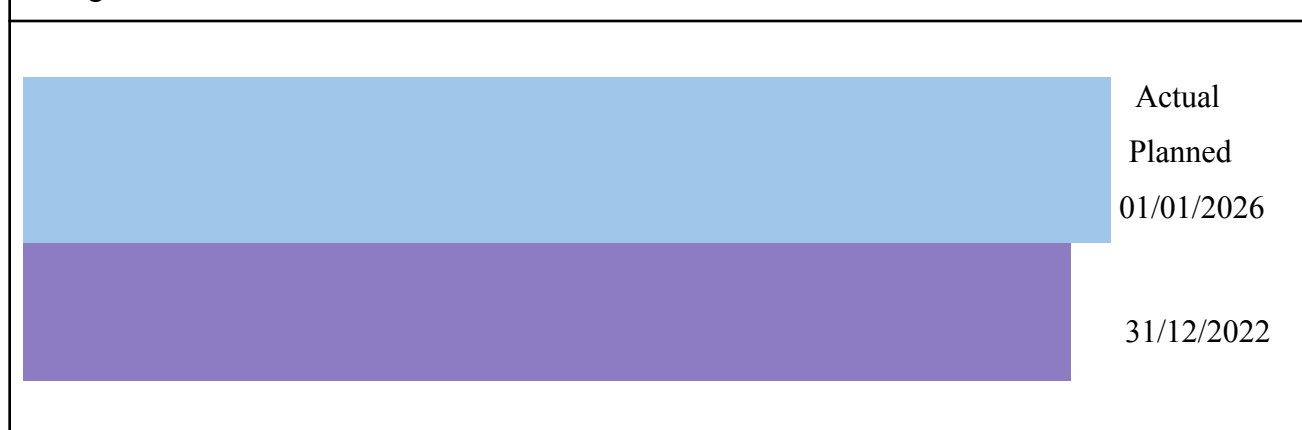

There has been no change from plan and the test has completed successfully. Refer to the schedule attached below.

Comprehensiveness assessment

All 6 identified incidents were caused by logic or integration issues and are planned to be corrected by the development team in the next release version.

For the schedule adherence, refer to the diagram below.

Result Summary

The item tested was the SeBenarnya.my Verification System. The tests were conducted on the system provided by the development team for the SeBenarnya.my project.

A total of 18 test cases were planned and executed. 33.33% of the test cases were associated with reported incidents during this test iteration.

A total of 6 incidents were identified, consisting of 4 major incidents and 2 minor incidents. These incidents include suggestions for correction and improvement to be addressed by the development team.

All identified incidents have been either open or deferred and are planned to be fixed in the next release version. The major incidents identified are considered to pose a moderate to high risk and should be resolved prior to product release.

The system will be re-tested after the identified defects have been fixed to ensure that all issues have been properly addressed. If no new incidents are raised during re-testing, it is expected that the system will conform to the SeBenarnya.my Software Requirement Specification (SRS) Version 1.0.0, dated 4 January 2026.

Rationale for Decisions

Due to the existence of open defects at the end of the test iteration, the test team strongly suggests that these defects be fixed prior to product release. The presence of open incidents indicates potential risk to system accuracy, transparency, and user trust.

Conclusion and Recommendation Based on Test Result

Conclusion: The current version of the product is not fit for release until defects are fixed.

Recommendation: A more thorough logic check on the system may lessen similar defects in the future.
